And there is another affliction of half-madness that is little understood. Madness seems to be a transmissible fever in some cases. Certainly age itself is not the compelling demand because children are sometimes held out, occasionally, neurologically may have a full load of brain. It would be fully to suppress cases for billions. Look at the number of half-mad and demented people and you'll know there is no cure.

Through the years many different types of vitamins have been recommended for men, but there is no nutrient that is 100% effective. Larger extracts (large doses) of vitamins A, carotene and sulfur compounds have been successful in certain cases. ## London Town

"London, Ontario, in 1842" painted by J. S. Hollam, A.R.C.A., O.S.A., after a water colour by Capt. F. H. Cuddy, now in the John Ross Robertson Collection, Toronto Public Libraries.

• In 1792, in the mind of famed Col. John Graves Simcoe, Canada's "London Town" was envisioned as the capital of Upper Canada. Thus was born the affinity in names with the heart of Empire; thus, though many years later, was there established in the heart of Canada another "London Town" upon a Thames bridged by the Westminster bridge shown in the painting.

Though no buildings were erected upon the site of London till 1826, London had grown to the magnitude of a city by 1854, and in that same year the Grand Trunk Railway made London a favored spot. From 1862 until 1885 London was the centre of Ontario's oil industry. Today it is a modern and progressive city with a varied industrial and cultural background.

Today, too, London is part of Canada Unlimited . . .
